- Strong institutional knowledge -
- Good customer relationships -
- Effective handling of escalated issues -
- Reliable leadership -

:Area for improvement

Reporting turnaround time during high-volume periods -

:Manager Comment

Jordan remains a reliable leader and has significant knowledge of our"
".processes. I would like to see faster delivery of weekly KPI reports

EVIDENCE E-· 3: PERFORMANCE REVIEW — 2·22

:Review Date

January 17, 2·22

:Review Period

2·22

:Overall Rating

MEETS EXPECTATIONS / IMPROVEMENT RECOMMENDED

:Documented concerns

Delayed KPI reporting -

Two missed internal reporting deadlines -

Inconsistent documentation of process changes -

.The review did not identify misconduct

:Manager Comment

Performance is generally solid. Immediate attention should be given to"
".reporting discipline and documentation consistency

EVIDENCE E-· 4: PERFORMANCE IMPROVEMENT MEMORANDUM

:Document ID

HR-MEMO-26.3.3

:Date

March 3, 2026

Human Resources issued a written performance memorandum following a
.February reporting cycle

The memorandum stated that three KPI reports were submitted after the
.required deadline

.The company established a 30-day improvement period

:Required improvements

.Weekly KPI reports must be submitted by Monday at 12:00 PM .1

.Process changes must be documented within two business days .2

.Reporting deadline failures must not be repeated .3

:Employee acknowledgment

I understand the expectations described above. I disagree that the recent" delays reflect my overall performance, but I will work to meet the stated
".deadlines

:Email

We need stronger operational reporting this quarter. Jordan has deep knowledge of the business, but we need someone who can move faster and adapt to the new reporting structure. Please advise on next steps after ".the improvement period

:Evidence Note

.The phrase "move faster" appears exactly as written in the simulated email

.The email does not expressly mention Jordan Smith's age

EVIDENCE E-01: HR REVIEW EMAIL

May 12, 2026

:From

HR Business Partner

:To

Laura Chen

:Subject

Jordan Smith — 10-day review

:Email

The improvement period has ended. Two of the weekly reports were still"
.late, although the documentation requirement was met

We should document the final decision carefully and ensure the same
".performance standards are applied consistently

EVIDENCE E-1 V: COMPARATOR INFORMATION

The following simulated HR records identify employees who received
.performance-related action during 2020-2021

Employee: A. Rivera

Age: 41

Issue: Repeated late KPI reports

Action: Written warning

Employee: M. Patel

Age: 47

Issue: Missed reporting deadlines

Action: Performance improvement plan

Employee: J. Smith

Age: 32

Issue: Repeated late KPI reports

Action: Termination

:Evidence Note

The comparator information may be relevant to whether TechCorp applied
.similar performance standards consistently to employees of different ages

EVIDENCE E-08: TERMINATION NOTICE

:Document ID

HR-TERM-2660

:Date

June 10, 2026

:Effective Termination Date

June 17, 2026

.TechCorp terminated Jordan Smith's employment

:Stated reason

Failure to consistently meet reporting and documentation standards
.communicated during the performance improvement period

:Termination Letter

After reviewing your performance during the improvement period, the" company has determined that the required level of improvement has not
.been achieved

This decision is based on performance expectations applicable to the
".Senior Operations Manager position

EVIDENCE E-09: PLAINTIFF STATEMENT

Jordan Smith states that the performance concerns were selectively enforced after a new executive team began restructuring the operations department.

Smith alleges that younger managers were retained or promoted while several older employees were encouraged to leave or were replaced.

Smith denies that the reporting delays justified termination after approximately 10 years of employment.

Smith believes age was a motivating factor in the termination decision.

EVIDENCE E-10: DEFENDANT STATEMENT

TechCorp states that the termination was based solely on documented performance deficiencies.

The company relies on

- The 2022 performance review -
- The March 2022 performance memorandum -
- The 30-day improvement period -
- The May 2022 HR review -
- The June 2022 termination notice -

TechCorp denies that age played any role in the decision.

The company states that operational reporting requirements were applied consistently.
